

---

Van: [REDACTED] <[REDACTED]@acm.nl>

Verzonden: vrijdag 3 april 2020 15:00

Aan: [REDACTED] <[REDACTED]@acm.nl>

CC: [REDACTED] <[REDACTED]@acm.nl>; [REDACTED] <[REDACTED]@acm.nl>

Onderwerp: Beantwoording vragen per zaak.docx

Hallo [REDACTED],

Hierbij een paar suggesties voor wijzigingen tav de beschrijving van de [REDACTED] zaak. Bij de [REDACTED] verder geen opmerkingen. Ik heb het ook nog even aan [REDACTED] laten lezen. Andere opmerkingen dan deze hebben wij niet.

Groet, [REDACTED]

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased by 1.5 million (1990–2000) and is projected to increase by a further 1.5 million by 2020 (Office for National Statistics 2001). The number of people aged 65 and over is projected to increase by 2.5 million by 2020 in the USA (U.S. Census Bureau 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to develop strategies to meet the needs of the ageing population. The World Health Organization (WHO) has developed a 'Global Strategy on Ageing and Health' (WHO 1999) which aims to 'enable older people to live lives of fulfilment and to contribute to the development of their societies'. The WHO strategy is based on the following principles: (1) older people should be able to live independently, (2) older people should be able to participate in social and cultural activities, (3) older people should be able to live in a safe and secure environment, and (4) older people should be able to live in a community that respects their dignity and rights.

The WHO strategy is based on the following principles: (1) older people should be able to live independently, (2) older people should be able to participate in social and cultural activities, (3) older people should be able to live in a safe and secure environment, and (4) older people should be able to live in a community that respects their dignity and rights. The WHO strategy is based on the following principles: (1) older people should be able to live independently, (2) older people should be able to participate in social and cultural activities, (3) older people should be able to live in a safe and secure environment, and (4) older people should be able to live in a community that respects their dignity and rights.

The WHO strategy is based on the following principles: (1) older people should be able to live independently, (2) older people should be able to participate in social and cultural activities, (3) older people should be able to live in a safe and secure environment, and (4) older people should be able to live in a community that respects their dignity and rights. The WHO strategy is based on the following principles: (1) older people should be able to live independently, (2) older people should be able to participate in social and cultural activities, (3) older people should be able to live in a safe and secure environment, and (4) older people should be able to live in a community that respects their dignity and rights.

The WHO strategy is based on the following principles: (1) older people should be able to live independently, (2) older people should be able to participate in social and cultural activities, (3) older people should be able to live in a safe and secure environment, and (4) older people should be able to live in a community that respects their dignity and rights. The WHO strategy is based on the following principles: (1) older people should be able to live independently, (2) older people should be able to participate in social and cultural activities, (3) older people should be able to live in a safe and secure environment, and (4) older people should be able to live in a community that respects their dignity and rights.

The WHO strategy is based on the following principles: (1) older people should be able to live independently, (2) older people should be able to participate in social and cultural activities, (3) older people should be able to live in a safe and secure environment, and (4) older people should be able to live in a community that respects their dignity and rights. The WHO strategy is based on the following principles: (1) older people should be able to live independently, (2) older people should be able to participate in social and cultural activities, (3) older people should be able to live in a safe and secure environment, and (4) older people should be able to live in a community that respects their dignity and rights.

The WHO strategy is based on the following principles: (1) older people should be able to live independently, (2) older people should be able to participate in social and cultural activities, (3) older people should be able to live in a safe and secure environment, and (4) older people should be able to live in a community that respects their dignity and rights. The WHO strategy is based on the following principles: (1) older people should be able to live independently, (2) older people should be able to participate in social and cultural activities, (3) older people should be able to live in a safe and secure environment, and (4) older people should be able to live in a community that respects their dignity and rights.

The WHO strategy is based on the following principles: (1) older people should be able to live independently, (2) older people should be able to participate in social and cultural activities, (3) older people should be able to live in a safe and secure environment, and (4) older people should be able to live in a community that respects their dignity and rights. The WHO strategy is based on the following principles: (1) older people should be able to live independently, (2) older people should be able to participate in social and cultural activities, (3) older people should be able to live in a safe and secure environment, and (4) older people should be able to live in a community that respects their dignity and rights.

The WHO strategy is based on the following principles: (1) older people should be able to live independently, (2) older people should be able to participate in social and cultural activities, (3) older people should be able to live in a safe and secure environment, and (4) older people should be able to live in a community that respects their dignity and rights. The WHO strategy is based on the following principles: (1) older people should be able to live independently, (2) older people should be able to participate in social and cultural activities, (3) older people should be able to live in a safe and secure environment, and (4) older people should be able to live in a community that respects their dignity and rights.

[The page contains a large, faint, and mostly illegible watermark or bleed-through from the reverse side. The text is mirrored and difficult to decipher, but appears to be a formal document or letter.]

