Dear ICPEN colleagues,

Please see below a message from UNCTAD regarding an upcoming webinar.

As mentioned during the vulnerable consumers session during the ICPEN conference last week, UNCTAD's Working Group on Consumer Protection and Gender has developed a draft checklist for authorities to take gender considerations into their work and will have a webinar on May 22nd to discuss gender perspectives in consumer protection, including the new draft toolkit.

Thank you to [REDACTED] of the Australian Competition & Consumer Commission for bring this to our attention.

Kind regards,

Your ICPEN Secretariat Team

Dear Delegates, Dear participants of the Working Group on Consumer Protection and Gender,

The Working Group on Consumer Protection and Gender was created at the request of member States to highlight best practices and facilitate information exchanges and consultations, led and integrated by member States voluntarily.

Since its mandate's renewal, this group has been working on integrating gender into consumer protection. To that end, members gathered in a subgroup to develop a draft of a checklist of actions and best practices to work as a tool to integrate the gender lens in the work of consumer protection.

The first draft of such a checklist was shared with UNCTAD's membership for comments, suggestions, and other examples.

The Working Group has organised a Webinar to launch and demonstrate this new tool designed for consumer protection agencies and regulators. The Webinar, Incorporating Gender Perspective in Consumer Protection: Launching the New Pathway, will take place on May 22, from 2.00 pm to 3.30 pm, Geneva time.

To join the webinar on May 22, please access here. No prior registration is requested.

Kind regards,

UNCTAD Competition and Consumer Policies Branch
